Wanted,—a cabinet maker and upholsterer. A practical man who can both make and mend furniture, will find all he can do in Wailuku. A shop of this kind, with a stock of coffins and undertaker's supplies, and decent hearse, is a badly needed. At present, the only apology for anything of this kind is run by an enterprising Chinaman, and the average white man is very dead indeed who does not feel some computations at being driver to his last resting place by a Chinaman.
